

THAT ROCKLAND BOY—ALTON

Fine Story About the Local Photographer Who Gained Newspaper and Radio Fame

He's called "Blackie" by most; he's practically a household name in the Green Mountains of Vermont, the back woods of Maine, down among the Narragansett Indians and the Hartford Insurance workers, and, of course, the Bay State—"The finest darn story teller outa Maine!"

Radio audiences also know him as Alton Hall Blackington, the spinner of some of the fanciest, most entertaining and authentic yarns ever to come out of New England about its past.

His nasal twang authentically down-East and his rapid-fire conversational delivery have become his trade-mark—a trademark so original and yet so fitting for his weekly stint over the NBC network. He has more than a million listeners.

When he's at work on a story on script, his home is in utter chaos—a complete shambles. Hundreds of notes, photographs and photostats, are laid out side by side in long rows in two rooms, on the floor, divans, tables, desks and windows, in chronological order, to be removed one by one only when "Blackie" has digested the contents of each pile.

His wife, Alice Powers Blackington, a Wheaton College girl and daughter of a retired Maine Superior Court justice, has resigned herself to all this, and more. Hugs filling cabinets, three desks, boxes and boxes of notes and kodachrome slides, and hundreds of books jam every conceivable bit of room along the walls, in closets, shelves, cases and table tops.

Mrs. Blackington doesn't mind it much, though. She thinks he's the most interesting person she has met.

"He's rather impatient and quick tempered at times, she observed. He is exactly the same everywhere—in his home, on the air and on the speaking platform."

"Blackie," who attributes 75 percent of his success to his wife, hands over to her each and every script he writes, for editing.

It takes him about a week to write a story in rough draft first, then to rewrite and rewrite until the story is telescoped into the 12 minutes he's allowed for the actual broadcast.

"Not having any more education than what I learned at Rockland High School," Blackie said, "I had to learn to live by my wits."

"So I sat down to figure it out. I had nothing except a camera. What was there around me? New England, which has more legends, romance, history and ghost stories than any part of the country. I thought I'd make use of what I had. "Well, here I am," Blackington chuckled.

His best stories, he says, come from Maine, then Vermont, and then Massachusetts. He thinks Maine has more human interest stories and characters than any part of the country.

He likes to relate how he was tramping about the back woods there some years ago looking for a guide and finally knocked on a cabin door to inquire about the whereabouts of a Chief Standwood.

"The minute I began talking," Blackington relates, the woman at the door, whom he had never met in this life blurted out with the exclamation: "My Goodness! It's Blackie!" She had recognized his voice.

Blackie receives hundreds of letters a week, requiring two days to answer—and each one is by his wife and himself. Most of the letters are complimentary and Blackie is asked to corroborate or disprove the many hundreds of stories that he has filed since he was a boy of 18 in Rockland, Me., where he was born.

Fireplace Complete

And Rockland Yacht Club Is To Hail Advent With Exercises

The Yacht Club fireplace has been completed at an expense to club members of approximately $500, according to Commodore Horatio Cowan. Dedication ceremonies will be held within the next two weeks when a dinner will be held in the clubhouse for members and guests.

The fund for the fireplace was started in the Summer of 1947 by Steward Maurice McKusick and grew to the point where it was possible to start construction this year. The foundation was dug by members during the Summer and the foundation laid. Masons completed the work last week and the first fire showed it to draw properly.

A 42-inch Heattillator unit has been installed to give heat in cool evenings to the entire room. Prominent in the work have been Cowan, McKusick and Bertram Snow, all who have given considerable time to the project.

Judkins' Body Found

Stonington Fisherman Was Drowned On East Side Of Isle au Haut

The body of David Judkins, 39-year-old Stonington mechanic, missing a week, was recovered Sunday in 15 feet of water 100 yards offshore on the eastern side of Isle au Haut.

Grappling operations conducted by Judkins' brother David, Archie Hutchinson and William Allen, brought the body to the surface. The craft apparently had crashed against some ledges known as the Battery.

Search for Judkins had been conducted by sea and air since Tuesday, when the dinghy of his motorboat was found tied to a lobster pot buoy.

A seagoing tug of the Coast Guard from Southwest Harbor will try to raise the hull of the boat and a diver from Boston will aid in the work.

Judkins leaves his widow, Dorothy, a daughter, Brenda, 7; four brothers, three sisters, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Judkins, when he covered such famed news events as the Sacco-Vanzetti case, the Lindbergh kidnapping, the Paris convention of the American Legion and the drastic Vermont flood of 1927.

Still a newspaperman at heart, he has a police radio receiver beside his favorite leather-backed rocking chair and a fire alarm tap-closed years ago when it was found to be unsafe. At the time of closing, it was announced that he is still an avid "spark" and will be on the scene of any "good" fire.

"What's his ambition? To write a book about all the 'Yankee Yarns' he weaves over the air. But he needs time, and he hasn't got it. He could write a book, but he doesn't think he would do it justice if he hurried. He is letting it pend for a while.

Tales of New England are the "only thing we know how to do and we love it," Blackington says. "Our main purpose is to preserve the folklore, the people, the history."

Deer Isle Shooting

Five Bullets Fired At Two Duck Hunters—One Was Wounded

Duck hunting is a dangerous sport down around Deer Isle if one is to judge from the experience of Alvin Jones and Robert Hutchinson, who were fired upon five times Sunday while they were gathering decoys into their rowboat preparatory to quitting after the day's sport.

Jones was wounded in the right side and Hutchinson's hat was shot from his head.

Dr. Harry Koffman who attended Jones said the bullet struck him on one of his ribs, the wound being made by a 22-calibre rifle.

Deputy Sheriff Roy Lowe investigated but could find no trace of empty shells on the shore.

City Council Met

Proposed Ordinances Came In For Large Share Of Attention

The City Council, Monday night, altered in first reading the ordinance governing the erection and maintenance of gasoline pumps on sidewalks to permit the replacement of existing units with new equipment.

A $30,000 tax anticipation note in local banks was extended 30 days by authority of the Council. This became necessary, City Manager Farnsworth said, because of the expenses incurred in fighting the Bog fire in September. This is the first time since the Council-Manager form of government was introduced to Rockland, that a note has not been met on the due date.

Farnsworth explained that the $16,000 expense of the Bog fire would be almost equally divided between the city and the State. He also stated that representatives of the towns of Rockport, Thomaston and Warren were meeting in Rockland today with him to adjust the costs of the fire which entered two of the towns and threatened the third. He explained that the fire burned into the towns of Warren and Rockport.

Kiwanis Club's petition to erect three signs about seven feet in height in the city was referred to Farnsworth for action. The petition called for one sign on Route 17, another on Route 1 on Camden street and the third on New County Road at the Thomaston line.

A total of 122 signers presented a petition asking the reopening of the iron bridge at the head of Park street where it joins Old County road. The bridge was closed some years ago when it was found to be unsafe. At the time of closing, it was announced that the town of Thomaston was also concerned in its ownership. The petitioners pointed out that the bridge would be a great convenience to the people of that area.

Residents of the area embracing part of Pleasant street, Broadway, Railroad avenue and Luce avenue petitioned the city for a sewer system to care for their needs. The matter was referred to the City Manager for study and report.

Parking meters and one hour parking will become law in the area on the West side of Main street between Summer street and Talbot avenue in 20 days as the result of the final reading and passage of an amendment to the traffic ordinances by the Council last night. The installation of the meters was proposed by David Rubenstein and opposed by Nelson Brothers who operate a garage on the opposite side of the street. Rubenstein's attorney appeared at the public hearing while Nelson Brothers were not represented.

The Sophia Is Sold

Steam Lighter Bought By "Young John" Has Had Interesting Career

The Steam lighter Sophia remains true to the Snow tradition, having just been acquired from the John I. Snow estate by Capt. John G. Snow.

The "Sophy" as she is known all along the Maine coast is not a handsome craft, nor a speedy one, but she has had more than her share of interesting experiences, and has been a friend in need, on many occasions in the past 65 years.

Her chief engineer, the late William E. Aylward, once said:

"They have used the old boat for everything, even a rudder, but I never expected to see it turned into a fireboat."

At the time, the Sophia was nosed into the heavily wooded bank at Vinalhaven, and the combination pumper of the Rockland fire department, which was lashed to her forward deck, was pumping thousands of gallons of sea water over summer cottages, menaced by a roaring woods fire. His reference to the boat being used as a rudder, alluded to the moving of the famous "spite house" from Phippsburg to Rockport.

This old Colonial home, which had been purchased by Donald Dodge, formerly of Philadelphia, was loaded onto a giant freight car float, and moved to its new home at Rockport, the novelty of the feat receiving due notice in all the papers at the time. Several tugs, which had aided in moving and loading the residence, was at the end of the string, acting as a rudder.

Another job which rated headlines was the wreck of the S. Polaris on Old Clilly ledge, Port Clyde, Feb. 6, 1920. The Sophia went to aid the craft in a blinding snowstorm, and eventually helped strip the hopeless wreck. The Polaris will be recalled as the first and only ship constructed entirely of cement. Considerable speculation was rife, at the time of the wreck, as to how the cement remains would survive the sea's battering. She has long since crumbled to dust.

Built at Lockwood yards, East Boston in 1892, the Sophia is 81 feet long, with a gross tonnage of 100 tons and a net tonnage of 50 tons. Scarcely a sea going craft, but she has been engaged in wrecking operations from Lewes, Delaware to Eastport. Her first trip to Delaware was to raise the Rockland-schooner Wawenock, the latter being finally wrecked for good at Stonington, the Sophia also being on hand there, to save what material was possible.

Several times the Sophia has raised sunken sea planes.

Rev. Mr. Monteith Becomes Head Of The Ministerial Association

The Knox County Ministerial Association met in the Farnsworth Memorial yesterday, and among other matters of business elected Rev. Charles R. Monteith of the Rockland Congregational Church as president to succeed Rev. Winfield L. Witham, who has been transferred from Camden.

Rev. Ernest Ogen Kenyon of St. Peter's Episcopal Parish, showed colored slides of English Churches and Colleges he had taken on a tour of England and the Continent this Summer.

Rev. Alfred G. Hempstead of the Pratt Memorial Methodist Church presided at the meeting at which showings of the religious motion picture, "Beyond Our Own," was discussed. It was voted to dispense with luncheon meetings of the Association.

The next meeting will be Monday, Dec. 13, in Rockland. Rev. Mr. Hempstead, Maj. Carl Bled of the Salvation Army and Rev. Melvin H. Dorr, Camden, will have charge of the program.

"SANTA" WILL FLY AGAIN

Commander Edward Rowe Snow Reveals Christmas Plans—His New Book

In Rockland last Friday Commander Edward Rowe Snow of Winthrop, Mass., unfolded plans for his 15th season as a Flying Santa Claus. A new feature this year will be a flight to the light-houses located on the Great Lakes.

Last December Commander Snow dropped 205 packages between Cape Sable, N. S., and St. Augustine Light in Florida, and return postcards came from all but seven of them.

Three of the non-responder lightkeepers were located in Maine—Eagle Island, Saddleback and Eagle Island. Commander Snow was especially puzzled at not hearing from Ram Island, as he recalls making an exceptionally advantageous flight directly over the keeper's home.

This year Flying Santa is going to adopt a new plan. He is going to notify all keepers in advance of the flights and will drop a package to each keeper who responds—either to him (at 29 Terrace avenue, Winthrop, Mass.), or to The Courier-Gazette.

Each package will contain a book, cigars, candy, chewing gum, razor blades, pen and pencil sets (if a boy) and a doll (if for a girl) all carefully wrapped in excelsior.

Four flights will be made this year, beginning Dec. 15, with a trip to Nova Scotia; the second will be made as far South as Wilmington, N. C.; the third to the Florida area and the fourth to the Great Lakes. The flights will be concluded two days before Christmas.

This year's stunts will be performed in a twin-engine Cessna, painted Christmas red, and with the words "Flying Santa" on the side.

Commander Snow's pilot will be Major Paul Dudley of Pittsburgh, Mass.

Commander Snow recalls gratefully and with admiration how these "Flying Santa" trips were inaugurated in 1927 by the late Captain William H. Winthrop.

It will interest Snow's many Rockland friends to know that his new book, entitled "Mysteries and Adventures Along the Atlantic Coast," will come off the press in about three weeks—Dodd, Mead & Co., publishers. It will contain 350 pages, liberally illustrated, with a valuable map as end piece.

Two of the stories in this new book will have a strong local interest. One is entitled "A Yankee Wizard," and tells the dramatic story of one of the great annals of the sea. Commander Snow calls it—the late Capt. John I. Snow. It will cite especially the story of how Capt. Snow salvaged the Narvick steamer Sankaty after the insurance companies and all others had given the craft up for lost.

The other subject to which reference has been made is "The Story of the Frozen Couple," suggested to the author by a story which appeared in The Courier-Gazette some years ago.

Commander Snow's new book will be awaited with a great deal of interest.

HONORED NEW PASTORS

Rev. Charles F. Bennett and Curate, Rev. George W. Goodreau, Warmly Greeted

A reception in honor of Rev. Charles F. Bennett, newly appointed pastor of St. Bernard's Church, and his curate, Rev. George W. Goodreau, was held Sunday night by the combined parishes of Camden, Thomaston and Rockland. The basement hall of St. Bernard's Church was filled to capacity by the members of these three parishes who came to greet the new priests and to bid them welcome.

Postmaster James Connellan acted as master of ceremonies for the evening and introduced the various speakers. Greetings from the Rockland people were extended by City Clerkman Robert McCarty, Dominic Cuccinello and Miss Anna Coughlin. The latter traced the history of Catholicism in Rockland in her own interesting style so familiar and so well loved by her many former pupils.

Greetings from the people of St. James Church in Thomaston, were extended by S. F. Haskell, who pledged their support and loyalty to their new pastor.

Edwin Donovan greeted the new clergymen in behalf of the parishioners of Our Lady of Good Hope in Camden and promised them help in every project.

Following the speeches, buffet lunch was served from a beautifully appointed table. Mrs. David Connolly of Camden, Mrs. Edwin Lynch of Thomaston and Miss Vittoria Carlini and Mrs. David McCarty of Rockland poured. Mrs. Marie Joseph was general chairman of the reception and her committee consisted of Mrs. Phyllis Grist, Mrs. Mary DeCastro, Mrs. Tillie Anastasio, Mrs. Frances Bellmore, Mrs. Stella Ellingwood, Mrs. Beatrice Robinson, Mrs. Ann Escorsio, Mrs. Eleanor Fairweather, Mrs. Elizabeth Perry, Mrs. Dorothy Hughes and Mrs. Leola Hyland.

Father Bennett was born in Cambridge, Mass., and attended Boston College. St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore and Catholic University. He was ordained to the priesthood on Feb. 15, 1919 and has served in Lewiston, Whitefield, Boothbay Harbor, Damariscotta, Lincoln and Dover-Foxcroft before coming to Rockland.

Father Goodreau was born in Rumford, Maine and is a graduate of Stephens High School, Assumption College Worcester and St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto. He was ordained May 22, 1948 and served as Summer assistant in Limerick and York Beach, until appointed curate of St. Bernard's Church.

Rockland is happy to welcome Fr. Bennett and Fr. Goodreau and extends to them best wishes for success in all their endeavors.

In Tirrell's Honor

Given Testimonial Banquet By the Kennebec Bar Association

The Kennebec County Bar Association gathered for a testimonial dinner for Superior Court Justice Frank A. Tirrell, now serving his first term in Kennebec County, at the Overlook Wednesday.

The guest of honor, who was introduced by Toastmaster William Niehus, Waterville, declared that a judge is more than an umpire, who calls the strikes and balls. Justice Tirrell welcomed co-operative action between lawyers and judges to assure that each individual received a fair trial. He said that it is his policy never to interfere with the trial of a case "unless the rights of a person are not being protected."

In expressing his thanks to the more than 50 present, he said, "Remember, judges are human, and I want your friendship and respect."

F. Harold Dubord, Waterville, president of the association, welcomed Tirrell and contended that he wished there "was more that could be done to stimulate interest in the association." He suggested that perhaps the group could meet more often and "have outstanding speakers address the meeting."

Other guests who spoke briefly in welcoming Justice Tirrell were Active Retired Justice William H. Fisher, Augusta; Robert B. Williamson, Superior Court Justice, Augusta, and Justice Edward F. Merrill, Skowhegan.

Prior to dinner, members held a recreational outing in the afternoon.

THE BLACK CAT

By The Roving Reporter

A radio merchant of Medford, Mass., has among his customers a former British bar-maid, aged 86, who is buying a radio "on time." Another customer, aged 90, is buying a television set "on time." A third customer, aged 81, wants one, but he is not buying yet because there will be so many improvements in the next few years.

Editor Shorey has a pleasing custom of winding up his excellent editorial column with a good anecdote. In the current issue appears this one:

"Then there was the tourist out in one of the western States who was being shown about by a resident of that section. They happened on an Indian, who was one of the characters of that region and the resident told the tourist what a memory the Indian had. 'Just ask him something,' the resident said. 'What did you have for breakfast Oct. 14, 1899?' the tourist asked. 'Eggs,' the Indian replied. The tourist was a little skeptical, as eggs are a common diet for breakfast but he took it in stride.

Years later he was travelling through the region again and recognized the old Indian. He stopped, got out of his car, and approaching the Indian said 'How? Right off the reel the Indian replied: 'Scrambled!'

Our newspaper friends are having a little fun with us over the story in the News a few weeks back about the pigeons taking possession of the upper part of the News building. We can assure them it was no joke, but we can, of course, take all the joking they see fit to hand out, and like it. One Massachusetts editor, picking up the story from The Courier-Gazette suggests that we get a big, stuffed owl and place it in the "dove cote" or in the window. He thinks that would scare the pigeons away and that we would have no more trouble with them. We appreciate the suggestion, but we think we have solved the problem in a more practical manner by screening the windows with henwire. Our conscience troubled us a little the first night when the pigeons about a hundred of them "came home to roost." It was a cold, stormy night, following the screening of the windows and the pigeons did not know what was happening, but there seemed to be no other way to get rid of them. The difficulty all stemmed from the days when an occupant of the upper story used to feed the pigeons and got them so they would eat out of his hands. We little thought at that time that they would multiply as they have—Bridgton News.

Employment Figures

Active Job Applicants In Maine Decline Nearly 2000

The State's 16 Maine Unemployment Compensation Commission offices placed 154 handicapped workers in suitable jobs last month, according to L. C. Fortier, Commission chairman. Included were 91 veterans and 10 women.

As of Oct. 1, the 16 offices had 949 handicapped workers, including 498 veterans and 87 women, actively seeking work in various parts of Maine. This was 106 less than the number as of Sept. 1.

Last month the Commission's offices placed 3515 unemployed workers in suitable non-agricultural jobs, including 1025 veterans in agricultural placements. September was the heaviest month of the year, with 14,717 job placements. The bulk of these placements was in the potato growing area. Other agricultural workers were placed in harvesting snap beans, and apples.

Employment continued high throughout the State, with the sole exception of textiles in which there were scattered layoffs.

Active job applicants declined 13 percent in September, from 13,571 the first day of the month to 11,718 at the close of September business. The number of veterans seeking work Sept. 30 was 3580, a decrease of 25 percent in the 30-day period. The number of jobs available declined 7 percent during the month, with 10,582 openings listed as of Oct. 1.

Predict Dewey Win

Newsweek Magazine Quotes Fifty Leading Political Writers

Newsweek Magazine says 50 of the nation's leading political writers unanimously predict victory for Republican Presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey. The magazine reports in its current issue the following results of a poll of 50 writers:

Average forecasts—Dewey, 376 electoral votes; President Truman, 116; State Rights candidate Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, 39.

The Republicans will retain narrow control of the Senate and increase their majority in the House. The average of the prediction for the Senate gives the G.O.P. 50 seats and the Democrats 46.

Average estimate on the popular vote for Progressive Party candidate Henry Wallace is 2,778,700.

Mrs. Sawyer's Query

No Answer Was Necessary But One Is Hereby Suggested

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—In your editorial column Friday, Oct. 8, you had a reprint from the Kennebec Journal. As you made no comment or criticism, I wonder if it coincided with your views.

Do you think anything could make the liquor business honest? Will making a thing legal make it right?

When you reprint editorials please let us know if they represent your views. I would like to know where you stand. Are you a "wet" or "dry"?

Clara T. Sawyer, Thomaston, Oct. 9.

[Only occasionally do I comment upon editorials clipped from other newspapers whether they agree with this paper's policy or whether they do not. People have a right to be heard and the newspaper credit at the bottom of the clipping shows whose views are being presented. Everybody knows where The Courier-Gazette stands on the liquor question and I think a majority of my fellow citizens in Knox County know whether I am a wet or dry. If Mrs. Sawyer inclines to be ignorant on that subject, let her ask almost anybody.—Ed.]

For Vice President—Earl Warren of California

[EDITORIAL]

COMPLETE POLL FRIDAY

The Gallup Poll, giving presidential standings State-by-State has now covered 24 States in areas where Republicans usually poll their greatest strength. Of the 24, Governor Dewey, as of the first week in October, leads in all but three. President Truman is ahead in two, while one is currently in the "doubtful" column.

Political sentiment as shown by Institute polls in the Southern and Western States where Democratic strength is traditionally the greatest will be reported this week. The series of articles will conclude next Friday with a 48 State summary the first complete round-up of presidential standings. Other round-ups will be made by the Institute prior to Election Day. The later polls will be especially interesting as showing the progress made by Dewey and Truman, the principal contenders. Meantime it should be remembered that the Election itself is three weeks from today.

THE ATOMIC BOMB

Most always we have heartily agreed with Winston Churchill's philosophy, and we are certainly in accord with the United States' possession of atom bombs stops a Communist juggernaut from engulfing all Western Europe. "Americans," he adds, "would be guilty of murdering human freedom and committing suicide themselves if they agreed to destroy their stock of atom bombs. Russia is demanding in the United Nations that the atom bombs be scrapped, and the weapon outlawed at once."

We have felt strongly in regard to the atom bomb that this weapon, terrible as it is, should be retained by this country, and the secret of its manufacture should not be shared with other nations.

MRS. CHAPMAN'S AMBITION

Mrs. E. May Chapman, former vice chairman of the Republican State Committee and since 1921 secretary to the clerk of the State House of Representatives is a candidate for assistant clerk of the House. Mrs. Chapman has proven herself a valuable political worker, and her services for the Republican party entitle her to much consideration.

ALONG THE ATLANTIC

In five of the six New England States and the six Middle Atlantic States Dewey is leading, according to the Gallup Poll. The solitary State in which Truman has the presumable advantage is Rhode Island where the Democrats displayed great strength in the 1944 election. But there are also three States in this grouping where a small shift in sentiment would show Truman leading. Those three are Connecticut, Maryland and West Virginia. The percentages of the two major candidates in the New England and Middle Atlantic States follow:

	Dewey	Truman
Maine	56%	34%
New Hampshire	54	36
Vermont	60	33
Massachusetts	50	43
Connecticut	43	39
Rhode Island	37	48
Mid-Atlantic
New York	47%	34%
New Jersey	50	38
Pennsylvania	50	41
Delaware	49	36
Maryland	47	44
West Virginia	49	43

The Kiwanis Club of Rockland will be represented at the 1948 convention of the New England Kiwanis District to be held Oct. 14 to 16 at Swampscott, Mass. Club President Al Young announces.

More than 150 Kiwanis clubs in the district, which embraces a membership of nearly 10,000 business and professional leaders, are expected to send delegates to the three-day meeting, Mr. Young said.

The speaking program will feature the appearance of O. E. Peterson, Chicago, secretary of Kiwanis International and executive head of the community service organization's General Office there. C. Everett Page, Bangor, governor of the New England Kiwanis District, will preside at the convention, which also will highlight committee conferences, a discussion of plans for the coming year, and election of officers. Peterson, who will serve as the official representative of Kiwanis International at the convention, has been secretary of the organization since 1942. His position keeps him in close touch with 2900 clubs and 190,000 members throughout the United States, Canada, Alaska and Hawaii.

Long active in civic affairs, Peterson only recently was appointed chairman of the national organization's division of the Security Loan Campaign and is serving as a member-at-large of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Delegates who will represent the Kiwanis Club of Rockland at the convention include Stuart C. Burgess and Carl Stilphen. Arthur P. Lamb, secretary of the Rockland Club and chairman of Kiwanis Education for New England District, is co-chairman of the District Convention.

See What We Did To Morse

The Rockland Tigers who trounced Morse to a fare-the-well Saturday night under the floodlights at Community Park. The victory was a well earned one and came after a 10-year gap during which Morse was habitually top dog at the final whistle.

Under the Floodlights
The Rockland Tigers whipped Morse before the biggest crowd in years and for the first time since 1938 emerged from a game with the Shipbuilders with a victory. The 31-0 score with Rockland on the long end is not necessarily indicative of the gap between the abilities of the two teams. Morse, with a green, light team, played hard football all the way but just didn't have the experience and weight to carry them to even a lone touchdown. They threatened several times and lost the ball on fumbles when close to pay dirt.

The starting whistle had hardly died away when quarterback Dick Kaler ripped through the Morse line and dashed 30 yards for a touchdown. He plowed the line again a moment later for the extra point.

The second quarter saw Deshon take off on an end run which covered a good 40 yards and ended across the goal line and the game stood 13-0 for Rockland at the half. Rockland tallied twice in the third quarter, the first, by Foote, who took a pass from Deshon and ran 30 yards to paying territory; and the second by McIntosh who smashed the line three times to break through to score after Deshon had placed the ball deep in Morse territory with a 25-yard jaunt.

The final score of the game proved to be a real crowd thriller as Foote borrowed a pass from a then thoroughly flustered,

Morse passer and romped 95 yards to cross the goal line with his pursuers far behind him.

The Tigers are looking like a better outfit every time they make a public appearance. Experienced coaching, plus a will to improve on the part of the squad, is fast making a better than average small school team.

Fred Payne's Plans Vacation Over, the Governor-elect Announces His Intentions

In a letter to a Portland newspaper Gov-elect Frederick G. Payne outlines some of the matters which will engage his immediate attention. He writes:

"I am going, on my return from vacation, to work out a definite and specific program concerning the development, conservation and research activities pertaining to the resources of Maine.

"I shall also set to work on a detailed study of the present financial structure of the State with a view of analyzing its various operations together with an analysis of how the present revenues of Maine fit into the overall financial picture. First, for the purpose of determining whether or not certain changes can be brought about which would reflect definite economies in the administration of State government; second, a study of the present tax structure and the possibility of revising this structure on a more sound and equitable basis.

"If the study proves this to be the case, the old age assistance program will receive my early attention, both for the recommendation of changes in the administration of the law plus an amendment to increase the maximum grant, taking advantage of the increased Federal subsidy, and making a study of earmarking sufficient funds to adequately finance this program.

"It is my desire to have ready for the next Legislature, a clearcut, definite program for submission and consideration. It shall be my aim at all times to work with them as a group, intending to solve both Maine's economic and financial problems. It is my hope that the Legislature will want me to work very closely with them toward the formulation of sound policies and programs in the hope that we will not run into a lengthy session."

Mare Adopts Fawn

Baby Deer Has To Stand On a Box To Reach His Meals

A tiny baby deer adopted by a mare! It's a fact. It happened recently in Butte County, Calif., and is described in a feature article by Fern Hill in the Chico Record.

There's a P.G. and E. employee in the story—Ralph R. Duensing of Magalia, a patrolman on a hydro-electric flume in that area. One morning, while making his rounds, Ralph discovered the fawn in the flume half-submerged half drowned and severely injured, supposedly by dogs. Apparently the little fellow had run until he was exhausted and then had fallen into the water.

Ralph carried the fawn to the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Al Swanson of Magalia who are members of the Butte County Humane Society. They rushed the animal to a doctor and tricked him into handling the "half dead baby" in their automobile.

X-rays revealed several broken ribs and other internal injuries, but the Swansons believed they could nurse the fawn back to health, so they took him home. And they named him Specks.

For several days Specks, too weak to stand up alone, was fed from a bottle. But as his strength returned he fought the bottle and wouldn't touch the milk.

On an off-chance, Mrs. Swanson took Specks to a photo-mare which was still nursing her colt. That solved the problem. He immediately began trying to get milk from the mare and the mare was quite willing to adopt another son. Since then both the colt and the fawn have shared the mare's milk on equal terms. Speck has to stand on a box to reach his meals, but he is growing so rapidly that soon he'll be able to do without his makeshift high chair.

Specks has struck up a friendship with Sheila, an airlead pup on the Swanson place and the two play together from morning till night. In fact, the fawn shows no signs of developing any of the characteristics of his wild heritage and seems perfectly content to settle down to farm life—From the P.G. and E. Progress.

Radiator Service

Skilled Mechanic In Charge At Nelson Brothers Garage

Nelson Bros. Garage has installed a complete service for automobile radiators. Bill Black, with seven years' experience in the line and having run his own business in back of Studley's Furniture Store for the past two years, is the skilled mechanic in charge of the radiator repair. Mr. Black learned his trade in New Jersey.

Nelson Bros. Garage has announced that complete servicing, repairing, recoring, cleaning, and repainting are the major points of their radiator service.

One whole section of the shop on the lower floor of the garage was turned over to Mr. Black last week for the installation of equipment and is now in operation. The technique used by Mr. Black is modern.

It is the hope of Nelson Bros. to make this service equal to the high quality service that they have been rendering the public in their automotive repair.

This is the Fall radiator check up season, and it is expected that the next month will prove the worth of this new department.

Prices Still Climb

Small Wonder That There Is Hesitation About Building

Building material prices in the State of Maine are still climbing. John H. Magee, District Director for Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont of the Federal Housing Administration states. The situation in Maine, he said, reflects the overall situation on a nationwide basis. This is the disconcerting condition facing builders searching possibilities for a satisfactory low cost house.

Wholesale prices of building materials, still at peak levels are continuing to climb upward representing a contrast to the trend recently evidenced in other commodities such as food and raw materials prices which have evidenced a tendency to decline from their post-war highs. This condition has made it gradually more and more difficult for the lower income groups to secure housing either new or existing, Mr. Magee points out.

In the current building season, Mr. Magee stated, FHA activity was confined largely in the field of new construction to single family dwellings constructed under the direction of the owners for their own occupancy. In connection with the studies now being made to find a home for the low income bracket he points out, it is an interesting commentary to note that applications for new houses show an upward trend in incomes between 1943 and 1947 evidencing the fact that it is in the high income brackets that new home owners are to be found.

Guests Sunday of his father, Charles E. Wheeler.

Mrs. Margaret Reid of Camden, deputy president of District 16, will be the installing officer for Puritan Rebekah Lodge, Thursday, at private ceremonies to be held at Odd Fellows hall. She will be assisted by an installing staff of officers from Maiden Cliff Lodge of Camden.

Thorough Inspection

Should Be Demanded By Car Owners—Urged By Sgt. DeWinter

With Maine's auto fatality rate already totalling 139 so far this year, Sgt. John DeWinter, director of the Maine State Police, Division of Traffic & Safety today urged motorists to demand a square inspection of their motor vehicles this month.

"Safety is the single purpose of Maine's semi-annual motor vehicle inspection—safety for the State's pedestrians and safety for our thousands of motorists," deWinter observed.

He added that "when motorists take their car or truck to be inspected this month, they should demand a thorough inspection and be assured by a competent mechanic that their brakes, horn, lights, tires, running gear and other safety devices are in safe, efficient operating condition."

"If you do not get such a thorough inspection, you are being defrauded, and if you conspire to have a slipshod inspection made of your car you are only fooling yourself and playing fast and loose with your own safety as well as with that of others," deWinter warned.

and attendants, Mrs. George Hahn served the bride cake, assisted by Mrs. Donald Crute of Friendship, Mrs. Arthur McLellan of Rockland, Mrs. Edward Billings of Stonington, Mrs. Raymond Billings of Rockland, and Mrs. Richard Jellison of Rockland who dipped punch. Mrs. George Grant of Rockland had charge of the gift table. The pearls which the bride wore with her gown, were the gift of her maternal grandmother.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was pearl earrings, and her gift to him was a gold tie clasp. The bride's gifts to her attendants were purses of pearls. The bridegroom presented neckties to his attendants.

Three grandmothers were present at the wedding—Mrs. Pearl Billings of Rockland and Mrs. Clyde Grant of Thomaston, grandmothers of the bride, and Mrs. Mary Prior of Friendship. A pale yellow corsage was presented to each, by their grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Prior are on a wedding trip to the White Mountains. The bride wore a blue velvet corduroy suit with black accessories and a corsage of white roses. They will make their home in Friendship on their return.

The couple attended Thomaston High School. Mr. Prior is employed by Robert Armstrong in Friendship.

Mrs. George E. Cross

Mrs. Elvira Gardiner Cross died Oct. 5 at her home, 16 Gleason street. She was born in this town, Sept. 1, 1881, daughter of Henry and Susan Merriman Gardiner.

She received her early education in the schools here and was graduated from Thomaston High School in 1899, and from Gorham Normal School in 1902.

She taught one year in the schools at Gardiner, and then returned to her home town, where she taught in the Grammar school until 1924. During the last five years of her teaching, she was Principal of the Green street building.

In 1924, she was married to George E. Cross. In the summer of that year she was stricken with infantile paralysis. Although from this time she was more or less restricted to her home, she still kept up her intense interest in the affairs of the town and of the Congregational Church of which she was a member.

Her patience, cheerfulness and kindly interest in others will long be remembered by her family and large circle of intimate friends. Her life portrayed the fact that endurance is the crowning quality of life.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a step-son, Joseph E. Cross, of Texas, and a sister, Miss Nellie A. Gardiner of Thomaston.

Services were held Friday from the Davis Funeral Home and interment was in the Village cemetery.

Burial was in the family lot in Achorn cemetery. The large gathering of relatives and friends and the profusion of flowers attested to the love and high esteem in which she was held. Hattie (Evel) Vaughan, 86, was born in Rockville, daughter of Susan Thorndike Ewell and Henry Ewell. She was a homeloving person with quiet ways and a good neighbor. Educational Club

Floridian Discusses "Community Service Work"—Live Open Forum

Mrs. Louise Ingraham was hostess to the Women's Educational Club at her home on Lindsey street for an afternoon and evening session.

The guest speaker for the afternoon was R. J. Henderson of Florida and Lincolnville Beach, and his subject, "Community Service Work." Mr. Henderson, an ex-teacher gave an excellent lecture on this phase of our activity, and stressed the need of an increase of interest in this particular field.

He pointed out that one out of every 20 persons in our country are engaged in producing farm products. Statistics show that there is an increase of 100,000,000 every five years, consequently the world faces a serious food shortage if we fail to plan for these increases in advance. In keeping with this program we need an enlarged social service plan and greater religious facilities in the rural areas.

One of the greatest of the community services came to being in the little town of Corinda, Iowa. A rural school teacher, Jessie Fields, had an ideal for her group of girls and founded the club which came to be nationally known as the 4-H Club. Its four leaves signifying Heart, Hands, Head and Health.

Open forum followed his remarks and was intensely interesting discussion. E. B. G.

JESSE BLACKINGTON

A former resident of Rockland who went West and lived to a ripe old age, died Oct. 7 in Woodside, Calif. Funeral services and interment were held in Yreka, Calif., Oct. 10.

Jesse Blackington was the oldest son of the late Oscar E. Blackington, a former resident of Rockland noted for his longevity. His father was a prominent Rockland business man who remained a well known factor in Main street trade long after he passed the allotted span of life.

Jesse's business career began in his father's clothing store, following which he became a traveling salesman for the John Bird Company. From Rockland he went to Mechanic Falls, where he was employed in a store with Edward Teague, formerly of Warren.

The growing West found him as a ranch manager in Oregon and California. During World War I he was appointed a deputy and among other duties was given the care of a railroad bridge.

Mr. Blackington manifested much interest in athletic sports and in his younger days was an ardent hunter.

He is survived by two sons, Clarence S., of Fiskdale, Mass., and Oscar Eaton of Redwood City, Calif., a brother, Louis E., of Rockland; a half-brother, Kenneth of Portland; and a half-sister, Mrs. Runy Lancaster, New Britain, Conn.; two grandchildren and several great grandchildren.

Waldoboro were Mrs. Myra Cooley, Mrs. Dorothy Moore, Mrs. Irene Orsini, Mrs. Florence Dawson, Mrs. Edna Brann and Mrs. Catherine Wellman.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester White of North Grafton, Mass., are visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. Edson Wellman.

A party Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Orff was attended by Mrs. Jack Taylor, Mrs. Mae Hibbert, Mrs. Alma Babb, Mrs. Irene Orsini, Mrs. Alice Pickney, Mrs. Dorothy Moore, Mrs. Florence Dawson, Mrs. Myra Cooley and Mrs. Catherine Wellman.

Farnsworth Museum

The Farnsworth Art Museum in Rockland has arranged to show Atlantic Coast, an exhibition prepared by the editors of Life Magazine, beginning Oct. 9 and continuing through Nov. 10.

Based on the photographic essay which appeared in a recent issue of Life, and consisting of 29 20x28" panels, Atlantic Coast includes many pictures not hitherto published. The 44 photographs which make up this exhibition are the result of a three months' trip by Life photographer Elliot Elisofon of Vinalhaven. Beginning at the northeast corner of United States, on the rocky coast of Maine, Elisofon travelled down along the Atlantic seaboard to the Florida Keys. His photographs record the subtle changes of earth, sky, and water through Massachusetts and the New England coast, through New York, New Jersey and the Middle Atlantic States, through South Carolina, through Georgia to the tropical shores of Florida.

The text, in opposition to the present day record of the pictures, attempts to suggest the primeval coastline; how it appeared when the Cabots visited the New England Islands; how the virgin rivers and bays looked to the Spanish, to the Dutch, and to the English of the 16th and 17th centuries. Almost all of the pictures keep the shoreline in view, and as this changes gradually from north to south, one feels transported from one climate and world to quite another. In their quiet understatement, Elisofon's photographs reveal the variety of the coastline both in its geography and in the life of the people who live along it.

Mr. Elisofon has recently left for the Pacific where he will make another series of pictures for Life.

James M. Brown, Director of the Farnsworth Museum is spending this week in New York City viewing possible acquisitions for the Museum and arranging for further exhibitions.

BETWEEN THE BOOK ENDS

(by Leah Fuller)

"Black Dinah" His mare was jet black, sparkling and glossy. Her eyes were luminous, kind, and intelligent, much more so than her mother's. Four socks, three perfect ones and an aridlet, and a longish white star, thinning out as it ran into the pink and white of her nostrils clearly bespoke her Arabian daddy. Laban, the circus stallion. Her forelock was the sauciest, bunchiest, on a horse ever owned; it made her face look smart. After old Aunt Tilly's crooning of "Dinah Lee," he named the filly Black Dinah.

Still a colt, Black Dinah and her youthful owner (the horse came on his 10th birthday), a reckless lad, shared each other's joys and sorrows. This sharing intelligence grew as they both grew. Black Dinah selected her owner's wife; she was his servant in the citrus grove; together they shared the terror and threat of one of Florida's worst hurricanes. That was not enough. She was to live to be more heroic; she saved the life of her owner's small daughter.

"Take time to read 'Black Dinah,'" by Florida's author, John Calvin Starr (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., Caldwell, Idaho, $3.50) aloud, for then you will be taking time to enjoy the quaint, droll, Cracker-talk of Cross Bayou folk. You will be enjoying the lifelike illustrations by L. D. Gram, who has provided the pictures for many other fine Caxton books. I found reading "Black Dinah" aloud was like enjoying that first thrill of picking that first orange in a Florida grove. It is an experience. And it is yours for the reading.

HIGH-SCHOOL HIGHLIGHTS

Tuesday morning of this week all the shop students were privileged to witness two sound films on safety. They were shown in the auditorium during the activity period. The first film, "For Safety's Sake," put out by the National Safety Council, was concerned with power-driven hand tools. This picture showed several accidents with such tools, their causes and how they could not have been prevented. "Safety in the Shop" proved to have General Safety as its central theme. This film was also put out by the National Safety Council. Both films, shown as part of the year's safety program in the High School shops, were very well done and certainly gave those who saw them something to think about.

The "Highlite" staff had its first meeting of the year Oct. 1. Mr. Hybels, the newspaper's teacher-advisor, set the end of the month or sooner as the publishing date; then he turned the meeting over to the co-editors, Betty Crozier and Dorothy Curtis, who distributed reporting tasks to the staff. Members of the Highlite staff are as follows:

Editorial staff: Co-editors, Dorothy Curtis, Elizabeth Crozier; feature editor, Barbara Goldsmith; exchange editor, Dee Perry; sport editor for girls, Betty Pendleton; sport editors for boys, James Connellan and Richard Jones. Business staff: Business and advertising manager, Lois Tootill; assistant, Ruth Roberts; circulation manager, Lucille Koster; assistant, Grace Thompson.

Meet the New Teachers
Wayne M. Garland comes to Rockland High from Bangor. He graduated from Bangor High School in 1934, and from Gorham State Teachers College in 1942. While there, he majored in Industrial Arts and Mathematics. During the war, Mr. Garland served for three years with the Civil Service at the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard in the Hawaiian Islands. While he was located in the Hawaiian Islands he did sheet metal work. He came home from there and started his teaching career last year at Levant, Me.

Florence Eagen and Marie Dorr are assisting Mr. Clunie in the office this week. The office messengers are Sylvia Davis, Anna Mariner, Charlotte Dean, Kermit St. Peter, Norma Dean, Maude Nelson and Elizabeth Fowle.

At chapel exercises Thursday morning Mr. Clunie asked the co-operation of the student body in making Saturday's game with Morse High of Bath successful. A great many people outside of school have been working on every detail to make this first night football game one to be remembered. Charles McIntosh of the School Board has made many of the arrangements. Bleachers have been donated by Morse High and transported at no cost to our school by the U. & G. Express Company of Rockland. Mr. Clunie asked for 15 tickets and 15 girls to help with the game. The band will be on hand in force. The members of this important organization are: Marion Talbot, Richard Burby, Mary Libby, Jeanine Leach, Athlene Moore, Evelyn Perry, Donald Joseph, Carol Stratton, Donald Keating, Barbara Clark, Albert Sprague, Norman Hammond, Richard Jones, Thomas Chisholm, Edwin Hustus, Sylvia Treener, Dale Knight, Marjorie Hart Sandra Perry, Justin Cross, Robert Joseph, Elizabeth Bled, Janice Staples, and Charles Sewell.

Junior High held its first assembly of the school year Wednesday. Mr. Clunie complimented the student body on its orderly conduct while passing to its newly assigned seats. He spoke briefly about new members for the school band and expressed the desire that about 50 or 60 Junior High students might join. A survey is being made during the week to determine the number of interested pupils. Principal Clunie introduced Mike DiRenzo, director of the activities of the Community Building. "Mike" spoke of the different forms of entertainment now available, and encouraged the boys and girls to use the building on their respective days. It has been decided that all Junior High members must leave the building at 8:30 p. m. Mr. DiRenzo introduced the members of the Youth Council, who were seated about the stage. Robert Gardner, a Freshman, is to look after the desires and wishes of the Junior High. However, all

New Automatic Telegraph "Brain"

Electrical "brain" in Western Union's new $2,000,000 automatic switching center in Boston, the first of its kind installed anywhere in the world, speeds telegrams from all New England to the rest of the nation without manual retransmission. Outgoing local telegrams pass automatically through this ultra-modern center.

AUTOMATIC TELEGRAPH "BRAIN"

New Era In Communications Is To Be Observed At Western Union Office

Rockland began Tuesday to receive the benefits of the new era of ultra-modern communications. At 7 A. M., lines from the local telegraph office were cut into the world's first automatic selective switching center at Boston, it was announced by Charles R. Beals, local Western Union manager.

The $2,000,000 transmission center at Boston features an entirely new "electrical brain" which eliminates manual retransmission of telegrams. Local telegraph operators in Rockland and other points in a six-state area will control the "brain" by merely typing out "call letters" on their typewriter-like keyboards. By the new method of "selective switching," for which they have been especially trained, the operators will have at their fingertips circuits connecting with every telegraph center in the country.

Until today, telegrams to and from Rockland were subject to manual relaying at Boston where they were sorted by routing clerks and carried by girls to operators, who retyped them to another relay center on their destinations.

Now these time-consuming steps have been eliminated. The Rockland operator transmitting a telegram controls the routing to any part of the country by merely typing two "call letters" at the beginning of the message. These call letters will cause the electrical brain of the switching center at Boston to select the proper circuit and automatically flash the telegram onward to its destination.

In the case of a telegram addressed to San Francisco, for example, the Rockland operator will type the letters "SF" representing the destination, on her typewriter-like keyboard before proceeding with the telegram itself. As the message flashes over a direct wire members of the Council will try to be helpful. In closing Mr. DiRenzo spoke about the big Halloween party which is to be held on Oct. 30. Everything is to be free. This is to be a costume party with two prizes which will be worth working for. See you there, "kids."

to the switching center at Boston, the electrical brain checks the call letters and an identifying message number to insure their accuracy, automatically selects the San Francisco wire and flashes the telegram to that city where it is received in finished form ready for delivery.

Incoming telegrams for Rockland will be received at the Boston switching center on a telegraph device known as a printer perforator which simultaneously prints the telegrams and punches combinations of holes on a paper tape. Switching clerks, seeing the destinations on the tape, will touch push-buttons marked Rockland, Maine. The pressing of a button will cause the perforated tape to run through a transmitter which will automatically transmit the message to this city.

In addition to the "cut-over" of Rockland's telegraph office to the Boston center today, circuits from all other cities in the six-state area are being connected to the new system one after another over a period of four weeks.

Several hundred telegraph people including Manager Beals, Miss Helen Gilbert and Mrs. Elizabeth Gilbert of the local operating staff attended the Western Union school at Nashua, N. H., where they were trained in the control of the new telegraph robot.

The capacity of the new Boston center is three times greater than former facilities, Manager Beals explained. The installation is one of the largest in the nationwide telegraph network of 15 high-speed switching centers fast nearing completion. It required almost a year's work by a large force of telegraph engineers and installers to complete the new system, which occupies two floors of the modern Western Union Building in Boston. The equipment, set up in a steel form, includes more than 3,000 miles of wire conductors and over a million wire connections.

Clerks And Ladies

Post Office Crowd Had a Happy Time at Ash Point Cottage

The Post Office clerks and their ladies met Sunday afternoon at the Colson cottage, Ash Point, to discuss plans for next Summer's State Convention. Emilio Hary, president of local branch, and Mrs. Hary were hosts at a picnic lunch, with the following members present:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Merriam, Branch Secretary and Treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Cross, Frank M. Tibbetts, Millard Hart. Those invited but unable to attend were, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Sanson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Perry, Mr. and Mrs. James Moulaison, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mosher, Mr. and Mrs. Valno Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Brasier, and Mrs. Millard Hart.

Due to the Yankee-Red Sox ball game, the men didn't do very much planning but the women did lay plans to reorganize the Ladies' Auxiliary, the first regular meeting to be held with Mrs. Cross, Wednesday, Oct. 13. After viewing some colored slides shown by Mr. Hary the meeting broke up with every one voting it a success.

Apple Crop Is Cut

Drought Got In Its Deadly Work In Past Two Weeks

Drought has caused an estimated 15 percent cut in Maine's apple crop in the last two weeks, a Maine Agriculture Department expert says.

George H. Chicks, chief of the division of markets, said he has made a "rather complete check." "It looks," he said, "as though the crop would be off about 15 percent from estimates of two weeks ago, which placed the crop at just over 1,000,000 bushels. This is primarily a loss caused by drought, as evidenced by the small size of the fruit and a heavy recent drop, which may possibly reduce normal storage holdings of Macintosh, the largest holding variety, by 10 percent."

He said almost all growers are harvesting a high percentage of Macintosh apples. The normal size is two and a half to three and a quarter inches.

Even with the cut, Chicks said, the crop will be as large as last year's. There should have been some increase, however, with many new trees coming into bearing.

He said it was hard to estimate the financial loss, since lower holdings of Macintosh might mean a more favorable market for them later.

Harvest of that variety will be finished by the end of this week.

Concerns The Gastons

Connecticut Paper Discusses the Candidate For Congress

(From the Hartford Times)

Recently William Gaston of New Canaan, Democratic candidate for Congress from the Fourth District, now represented by John Davis Lodge, Republican, recalled that his paternal grandfather, who was Governor of Massachusetts in 1874, was a Democrat of note. He recalled also that his father, William A. Gaston, a well-known Boston banker in his day, had twice run for Governor of Massachusetts on the Democratic ticket and once had opposed the famous Henry Cabot Lodge for the United States Senate. He lost three times. Now Mr. Gaston opposes the grandson of Henry Cabot Lodge, and hopes he may win over him in the Congressional battle. Congressman Lodge, said candidate Gaston, is "100 percent reactionary." There were other reasons why he believed he would make a better Representative than Mr. Lodge, notably his greater devotion to the "interests of the common man."

This has aroused cynical comment in certain journalistic quarters, whence comes advice to the common man to "drink deeply of Mr. Gaston's fond words, and of the lavish praise, the warm regard, the tender solicitude that are now yours. Yes, make the most of it. For come Nov. 2 and you will be, not only the common man, but quite probably the forgotten man once more."

One can understand that bit of pessimism, but occasionally they do reach Congress—and other political places—men of real dedication to the common man. In fact, even the uncommon man welcomes to office such idealists until after he has been rescued from his predicament of the moment, when he reverts to his usual attitude of ingratitude. The common man, however, clings to his idols and believes that in good time they will work marvels for him, despite the odds against them.

Mr. Gaston may be on the way to Congress, but if he should not reach the National Capitol this year he can fall back for comfort on the records of his grandfather, for whom he was named, and his father. His great-grandfather, Alexander Gaston, was a member of the Connecticut Legislature from Killingly, where the first William was born in 1820. William attended academies in Plainfield and Brooklyn before entering Brown University. He became a famous lawyer in Massachusetts, described as being "the embodiment of dignity and grace," and the first Democrat to be elected Governor since 1852. Furthermore, he is said to have been so shy and self-effacing it is difficult to imagine him entering a political contest.

His son, William A., was dignified, too, but not shy. He disliked the policies of the first Henry Cabot Lodge, and the policies of the Republican party. Though he did not win election, Gaston was out there fighting, as is said of valiant battlers. Now William A.'s son is trying for Congress from a Connecticut district served by a grandson of the first Henry Cabot Lodge, whose cynicism is still well remembered. If the current William Gaston is a chip off the old block, he has a good chance of making himself well and favorably known between now and Nov. 2, and—who can tell?—of being elected.

[The above editorial will have interest for many Knox County readers, as the Gastons have for many years been Summer residents of North Haven, and Mr. Gaston is the owner of Hurricane Island. —Ed.]

"Jolly Time" Popcorn

Lays Part Of Its Marked Success To Newspaper Advertising

We have just received the 1948 advertising schedule for Jolly Time—the nation's most widely advertised popcorn.

And is it a honey! Thirteen ads to run each week between now and Christmas. Jolly Time is the world's biggest selling popcorn. A recent survey of grocers from coast to coast revealed that Jolly Time is the first choice of grocers 15 to 1 over any other brand.

Howard C. Smith, president of the American Popcorn Company says, "One big reason for Jolly Time's success is the consistent use of newspaper advertising. We have been using newspaper space to promote Jolly Time for a number of years, and each year we find our sales steadily increasing. We would not think of trying to operate our business on a successful and profitable basis without the help of newspaper advertising."

But Jolly Time is also successful because it is First Quality popcorn. Consumers know that Jolly Time always pops. Big, tender, delicious. It is packed air-tite in metal at the very moment of popping perfection. The air-tite package keeps it in perfect popping condition.

Now while the Jolly Time campaign is running, tie-in with Jolly Time's sales promotion. Display Jolly Time. Use it in your ads in the paper and in your other advertising. We have free slats available. Ask us to show you.

Fewer Unfilled Jobs

Manager Coughlin Gives a Satisfactory Report For Rockland Office

The Rockland office of the Maine Unemployment Compensation Commission has placed 31 handicapped workers, including 21 veterans, in suitable jobs during the first nine months of 1948, according to Manager John D. Coughlin, who made his announcement as the fourth annual National Employ the Physically Handicapped program got underway in Maine.

As of Oct. 3, opening day of the campaign, Coughlin said his office was trying to find suitable jobs for 42 handicapped workers, of whom 29 are veterans. Suitable jobs, the manager explained, are jobs in which the handicapped workers can compete effectively with normal workers, and jobs which will not aggravate personal disabilities.

During September, according to Coughlin, his office placed 252 unemployed workers in non-agricultural jobs, as well as 157 placements in seasonal farm work.

The number of office contacts dropped 7 percent, in September, available job openings decreased by 21 percent, and the number of job applicants actively seeking work was up three percent, with a total of 404 men and women seeking work in the area served by the Rockland office as of October began.

At the end of September, the Rockland office had 201 unfilled jobs listed, a decrease of 21 percent during the month. Generally, Coughlin said, a high level of employment was maintained during the past month in the large area served by the Rockland office, including practically all of Knox and Waldo Counties, and Waldoboro in Lincoln county.

The new anesthesia machine which was ordered in February has just been delivered. This gives the hospital an anesthesia machine for the Maternity Department, Delivery Room, and if the operating room machine is out of order at any time this outfit can be transferred to that department temporarily.

The entire staff of the hospital is assembled and maintained for one purpose only—to help the patient get well. Among them are 16 physicians and surgeons; five courtesy staff members, 20 registered nurses, 2 nurses aides, 7 trained attendant nurses and 17 other employees. All with the patient's speedy and complete recovery as their single objective. To facilitate the patient's return to health, to give 24 hours of skilled care, we normally have about twice as many people on our payroll as we do patients.

Smart Union Cow

Holstein Owned By Herbert Hawes Led State With Milk and Butterfat

Number 98, a Holstein cow owned by Herbert Hawes, of Union, led the State in both milk and butterfat production for August, reports from county supervisors of Dairy Herd Improvement Associations show.

This cow produced 2670 pounds of milk and 100 pounds of butterfat, or roughly 1195 quarts of milk and 117 pounds of butter, which should add a tidy little sum to her owner's milk check for August. Schuyler Hawes, also of Union, had the second best cow, a Holstein which produced 2510 pounds of milk and 98 pounds of butterfat.

RECALLING DAYS OF YORE

Former Camden Man Preserves Interesting History of the Penobscot Valley

By Frank H. Miller
(Chapter Ten)

The old Northport Camp Ground between Lincolnville Beach and Belfast where so many people from Camden and the surrounding towns would go either by boat or their own teams for a week each year, has now been converted into a Summer colony called Bayside.

Nearly 100 years ago the Methodist Church, through a conference committee, bought the land for the purpose of holding religious services one week during the Summer. It started as a tented colony, but as years went by the owners of the land could erect cottages so that their families could come earlier than camping week and stay later without the inconvenience of living in a tent.

During the years when camp meeting was at its height the Methodists in the different towns and cities conceived the idea of building community houses, several of which are still in use in Morris Park.

The auditorium was built in this square and it is supposed these houses were built here so the occupants would have no excuse for going elsewhere to meeting.

These community houses were barnlike structures, and nearly all of them had a sign on front, bearing the name of the town of the owners. Some of them still have these names on them.

The writer had a chance, within a few years, to go through one of the oldest houses on Morris Park. There were large double front doors; entering an immense living room, that would probably accommodate everyone in the building. Upstairs there was, it seems, no end of small bedrooms.

There is little wonder that each community house had a large room on the lower floor, for there was no other place in the building to receive visitors. Most of the houses had lockers, or cupboards, as they were then called, where each family could keep its dishes, silverware and other utensils. It is understood that a few of the buildings are still owned in common, but in most of them the shares of heirs have been purchased until each is owned by one person.

In the Nineties the campground as a religious meeting place was at its height. During the years that followed, it gradually became more of a Summer resort. The boats, large and small, brought loads of excursionists nearly every day of camping week, a large number of whom did not even know where the Auditorium was located.

There was a dance hall on the South Shore, beyond the limits of the camp ground that was well patronized during the week, with an orchestra from Rockland, which was very popular at that time.

Bayside has over 300 cottages, a few of which are equipped for year around houses. That it is a popular resort accounts for the fact that practically every cottage is occupied from June 15 until Labor Day or longer. Rentals are at a premium.

The older residents will remember when there was an admission fee of 10 cents during camping week and the trustees had the grounds fenced in to back their demands. There were gates at the roadways and on the wharf. At the wharf gate it seems to the writer that he can still hear the men yelling out, as the passengers crowded off the boats, "Ten cents, please. Have the change ready."

The story is told how the captain of the steamer "Tremont" on the way down from Bangor, after listening to complaints of excursionists about crowding the wharf to the danger point while they were being held up by the collectors, decided to eliminate the danger. Upon arrival he waited until he saw the boatload being held up, when he went ashore with a fire axe and tore down the fence. That boatload of passengers went to camp meeting without paying the 10-cent fee, anyway.

One of the places that was sure to draw a crowd was up in the grove where the horse selling and trading was going on. One incident that the writer will never forget was when a man, quite intoxicated, traded horses. In the trade he got a blind horse, but it was evident to many of us that he did not know it when he drove away. It was a good looking horse but the trader said, two or three times, "He is a good horse, but he doesn't look well."

He looked well to the intoxicated man or he would not have traded. I didn't see the man again, but I heard later in the day, that the horse ran head-first into a tree at Brown's Corner and injured himself so that he had to be shot.

Bayside is now governed by a Village Corporation, and handles its own affairs as a town would do. It has its own utilities except water and lights, which are owned by private corporations.

Bayside has outgrown its existence as a tented city for religious services for a week each year. It has now become one of the quietest and best Summer resorts on the Maine coast.

Postal delivery service was instituted in 1885.

To Coach Swimming

Kenneth Dornes Of Stonington Appointed At Clark University

Kenneth C. Dornes, son of Mrs. Belle Dornes of Sand Beach Farm, Stonington, and a member of the Senior class at Clark University, has been named to coach the swimming team at Clark this year.

Mr. Dornes, a native of this city, former student at Worcester Academy and a graduate of the Tome School in Port Deposit, Maryland, was a member of the rifle team and coached and captained the swimming team at the Tome School. He has also played on various ball teams.

At Clark he is majoring in history. He has been chairman of the Worcester Aquatic Committee. He has also studied at Bates College, the United State Naval Academy at Annapolis and University of Maine. During World War II he served with the United States Navy from December, 1943, to June, 1946.

Fifteen candidates have reported at an organization meeting for Clark's first swimming team. Several informal meets are planned for the winter months, with Clark entering intercollegiate swimming competition later.

Cut Price "Smokes"

Director Of Tobacco Tax Division Speaks On Subject

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:

In the past week or 10 days we have had several letters or phone calls from various Maine papers asking us about running advertisements from out-of-State concerns who wish to sell cut-price cigarettes, cigars, or tobacco products to residents of Maine. You will doubtless recall that we wrote you in 1942, a few months after the Cigaret Tax Law was passed, asking for your co-operation in refusing advertisements of this nature and in view of this recent campaign by mail-order houses, we are again bringing the matter to your attention. Recently, one State paper inadvertently ran an ad, of this nature, but dropped it after the one issue and will print a statement of explanation in the following issue. All of the other papers have consistently refused to accept these ads.

We appreciate your co-operation in refusing these ads so that the tax revenues of the State may be maintained and the volume of sales by your local dealers and wholesalers not decreased by out-of-State purchases.

NEWS FOR THE SPORTSMEN

Small Game Hunters Report Better Than the Average Amount Of Success

Opening of Maine's duck hunting season at noon today is hottest news in the outdoor field this week. Inland Fisheries and Game Commissioner George J. Stobie conservatively estimates the waterfowl population at normal.

Warden Supervisor Charles Head of Gardiner states, however: "There is no question but that we have more black ducks this season at Merrymeeting Bay, Bowdoinham and nearby towns."

Warden Supervisor Ray Morse of Ellsworth says he has more than 200 ducks on one beaver flowage. Grouse, pheasant and woodcock hunters have been doing okay since the season opened a day belatedly, Oct. 2, except in York County. Small game hunters also report better than average success, with rabbits in the lead.

Warden Vincent Shaw of Ashland checked 98 birds in game bags on the American Realty road in two hours opening day.

Warden Supervisor Wendell Brown of Dover-Foxcroft counted 76 hunters with 151 grouse. William Gordon of Greenville checked 19 hunters with 50 grouse.

With fly-fishing only for one keeper per day allowable in some Rangeley waters, to Oct. 15, Warden Supervisor Roy Gray of that town, describes action as fast. To substantiate this he cites a 6 1-2 pound squawtail taken at Little Kennebec Lake by Mrs. Charles MacVeigh of Kennebec. Roy adds that Greenville cove, Rangeley Lake, also produced several five-pound salmon for a fly-fisherman he does not identify.

"Partridge hunters were out in force on the Great Northern Paper Company road above Rockwood, Friday and Saturday," says Warden E. H. Ingraham. (This area was in the area in which hunting was allowed Oct. 1.)

Continuation of crop damage in some parts of the State by deer (to beets and other root crops) and jacking of deer by illegal hunters is keeping Maine wardens on a round-the-clock schedule. These men are in agreement with Commissioner Stobie that hunters could bag 45,000 whitetails here this Fall, given a favorable season as to weather and by hunting agricultural areas.

Supervisor Lloyd Clark of Milltown, says deer have invaded turnip and carrot patches in his section of Washington County. Clark has had 11 night-hunting cases recently, but says deer are as numerous as ever, apparently.

Paul Hanscom, supervisor of Old Town, says bears are reported very plentiful in his district. He has had claims for bear bounties from Brownville, Lincoln and Lee and other towns in the northern part of his division.

Mrs. Dorothy Farnsworth of Beddington looked out of her window the other day and saw two bears right on her front lawn. In the absence of her spouse, Mrs. Farnsworth disposed of one bruin in true pioneer fashion. Didn't want bears cluttering up her dooryard, she said.
